Indibook at Cannes Lions

*The world's first online crew booking service takes a stand at Lions Innovation Start-up Village, Palais II
– 21st June 2016*

Cannes, France:

Indibook is exhibiting on Stand 14 at Cannes Lions Innovations for Start-ups exhibition today.

Indibook has been selected to take part in this prestigious international festival of creativity and is demonstrating its unique online crew booking system to some of the world's top creative and business talent.

Using Indibook, film productions can now find, book, manage and message their film crews online, anywhere in the world. The company is currently working with a major South African crew booking agency as a first step towards their international service.

Indibook Student

Indibook has also just announced that it is running pilot schemes with two top UK media universities to help with the management of their students' productions. It is hoped that Indibook Student will be rolled out nationally, then internationally towards the end of 2016.

Who is behind Indibook?:

Indibook brings together the talents of Film Assistant Director, Richard Lingard and Business IT Specialist, Chris Ridgeon. Both bring a wealth of experience from their respective film and internet industries and have developed Indibook after extensive discussion with film production companies and crew.

To meet Richard, please drop by Stand 14 at Palais II, Cannes on Tuesday 21st June, contact him at richard@indibook.com or via the official Cannes Networking app. We are always keen to meet potential partners!
