No printer I've ever tested has worked so well. It made me want to print more, and that's the ultimate win.

BY JOHN BRANDON

I thought something was wrong when I printed out a really blank sheet. I must have been clearing a blank sheet, was my initial thought. Then, I realized it was an accident.

As you may know, I've been testing printers, laptops, phones, and everything in between for 15 years now, becoming a full-time writer. It's always surprising to me when something surprises me (ahem).

New Office, same as the last Office but faster? Not this time. New printer? Usually not that exciting.

Surprisingly, the HP PageWide Pro 5770e is one of the most powerful, fastest, and most reliable printers I've tested in the past 15 years. I printed an entire manuscript. I printed my taxes. I printed a million other things for fun. Not once did the PageWide 5770e even slow down. In one test, the printer seemed to stall out—then I realized it was my problem with my own Wi-Fi network.

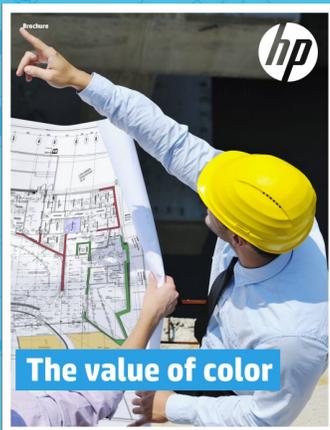

HP claims this is the fastest printer in its class for the first time, which is a pretty much unheard of. The print speed is mind-blowing.
