Unit Roadmap and Learning Design

On starting a new unit, students are provided with clear guidance on the content, aims and intended learning outcomes of the unit from the beginning.

The Unit structure is intuitive allowing students to efficiently navigate unit content and seamlessly access information and learning materials, allowing for a consistent user experience.

The purpose of all learning materials and activities is defined and its relevance to learning outcomes clear, encouraging students to engage with it.

Consider content mapping against the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals

Explore Linkedin Learning for embedding further discipline content.

- The Unit handbook is available under the Unit Information & Organisation content module.
- The Unit aims and intended learning outcomes area under Unit Information & Organisation has been populated.
- A Teaching schedule is available under Unit Information & Organisation.
- A member of staff has provided a clear overview of the unit including key expectations of students via video or audio e.g. using Video Note.
- Unit structure is clear and unambiguous either in a weekly or topic format using calendar dates.
- There is a logical workflow and progressive structure with content organised to no more than 3 levels; top level, module and sub module.
- There is clear and consistent labelling of modules and files.
- Descriptions have been added to module and content areas for context; why it's there and what it's for, with learning materials signposting back to unit expectations and reiterating learning objectives and assessments.
- Quick Links are utilised via the announcements tool to provide ease of access to content for students.
- New topics/discussions are communicated clearly with introductions attached to each module and introduced using audio or video e.g. Video Note.
- Release Conditions or date restrictions have been utilised to create a pathway for students to navigate through the materials, creating a customised learning experience, with clear guidance for students on how it functions.
- Recordings of teaching delivery are made available and renamed with clear titles and dates.
- Recordings of teaching delivery are contextualised noting key information areas.
 - Or key topics have been condensed into bite size recordings.
 - Or quizzes have been incorporated into recordings of teaching delivery e.g. the use of quizzes within Panopto.
- Unit format and layout is in line with Programme expectations e.g. this could include:
 - A Staff area set up with restricted access
 - An External Examiner area set up with restricted access in line with Faculty practice
- Innovative approaches have been taken e.g. flipped classroom, team-based learning, problem-based learning, enquiry-based learning.
- Extension materials are available for students who want to learn more about a topic.
- All content complies with copyright law.

Unit Roadmap and Learning Design

‘the layout of the unit and everything being in one place... is very efficient, especially with hyperlinks off to further reading and anything else’

‘it is very obvious as to why any specific piece of content is included’

‘it was easy to see the work that we needed to do for each session (both pre and post work)’

‘the overview...that is posted at the start of the weekly content is most helpful when understanding what you will achieve within the coming week’

Inclusivity and Accessibility

‘Lecture recordings are very useful and much better than just the powerpoint’

‘For someone who’s not coming from an English speaking country...the recorded lectures help me to understand more’

‘I can read through at my own pace, pause, take notes and go back on information’

Assessment and Feedback

‘every subject should do an end of week quiz to help recap what has been learnt throughout the week’

‘tests make the information easier to manage’

‘ the lecturer recently decided to implement audio as well as written feedback which works really well – far more can be understood via this method. I definitely like it!’

‘great support of assessment through seminars that give...examples of good/bad poster presentations’

Communication and engagement

‘for general questions the discussion forums work great!’

‘the discussion board is seen by some as an easier way to have a detailed discussion about topics’

‘teaching staff are very accessible and there to answer any questions’

‘it shows in seminars that they have taken our feedback on board’

‘the lecturer is asking us more questions frequently. This are simple yes/no/I don’t understand and allow us to quickly get our understanding across’

‘they genuinely care about how we are doing so they don’t overload or overwhelm us’

Student feedback themes

- All in one place
- Chronological order
- Weekly overviews
- Clear relevance
- Pre-recorded lectures
- Varied assessment methods
- Regular formative activities: quizzes
- Detailed & regular feedback
- Examples of good & poor work
- Voice-recorded feedback
- Q&A sessions
- Discussion boards

The screenshot shows a web interface for managing a unit. At the top, it says "Master unit 22/23 DRAFT". The user is identified as "Tim Galling". Navigation tabs include Content, Communication, Assignment submission, Analytics, Reading List, Grades, Unit Admin, and Help. A sidebar on the left contains a search box and menu items: Overview, Bookmarks, Unit Schedule, Table of Contents (9 items), Unit information & organisation (6 items), Assessment (1 item), and Your feedback matters (2 items). The main content area is titled "Unit information & organisation" and includes a "Print" button and "Settings" icon. Below this is a section for "Add dates and restrictions..." and a paragraph explaining the area's purpose. Action buttons for "Upload / Create", "Existing Activities", and "Bulk Edit" are present. A list of modules follows, each with a title, type (Web Page or Link), and a checkmark: "Unit overview and intended learning outcomes" (Web Page), "Teaching schedule" (Web Page), "Your attendance" (Web Page), "Meet your teaching team" (Web Page), "Library Support" (Link), and "Additional Learning Support" (Link). At the bottom, there is a field to "Add a sub-module...".
