Flooding in Mid-Michigan

Wednesday, May 20, 2020

Flooding is causing hazardous conditions in parts of Mid-Michigan. Our top priority is the safety and well-being of our team members, as well as providing the highest level of service to our customers. Although contingency plans are in place, some service delays and disruptions can be anticipated for inbound and outbound shipments in parts of Mid-Michigan. FedEx is committed to providing service to the best of our ability in areas that can be safely accessed.

Up to date information on weather advisories can be found at the National Weather Service.

FedEx cares about your safety and we encourage you to prepare for natural disasters. Click here to learn how to prepare your family.

Shipping to affected areas?

To help avoid delays, we encourage you to contact your recipients to verify whether their location is open or able to receive deliveries.

Note that potential service disruptions may not affect FedEx Express, FedEx Ground, FedEx Freight, FedEx Office, etc. the same. This may result in different levels of impact as well as cities, states and ZIP Codes serviced.

Continue to check fedex.com for service updates. For specific shipment status information, please track your shipment at fedex.com. Consistent with the provisions of the FedEx Service Guide, shipments delayed due to flooding are not eligible for a refund or credit under the money-back guarantee policy.
