An Update to The Next President

2020 would be another history-making year, with the election of Joe Biden and Kamala Harris.

And in 1961, President 46, Joe Biden, was a high school senior. He'd been teased about his stutter all through school, but practiced reading poetry aloud in the mirror until he was confident enough to give a speech.

KAMALA HARRIS, the daughter of Jamaican and Indian immigrants, is both the first woman and the first person of color to be elected Vice President of the United States.

“While I may be the first woman in this office, I won’t be the last. Because every little girl watching tonight sees that this is a country of possibilities.”

—Kamala Harris

“I pledge to be a president who seeks not to divide but unify, who doesn’t see red states and blue states, only sees the United States.”

—Joe Biden
